VOL. 5. NO. 68 MONESSEN, PA., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1906. SIX CENTS THE WEEK

NEGRO WHO SHOT HERSHY NOT IN YESTERDAYS HAUL.

All Four Were Turned Over to Charleroi Authorities Who Put Them Through Sweating Process With but Partially Successful Results.

The four negroes who were captured by Capt. Borland and a squad of his men yesterday at noon, were turned over to the Charleroi authorities where they are being detained. They were arrested in one of the tough localities near Courtney. Two of the men who gave their names as Ora Lewis and Henry Tucker were recognized as having been mixed up in the trouble of Saturday night. They were both heavily armed. The other two are also thought to be a part of the Wireton gang. The men will all be given a hearing before a Charleroi Justice of the Peace some time today.

Accompanied by Sergeant McCall and eleven of the troopers, Capt. Borland left here yesterday morning to investigate several reports as to the whereabouts of the negro who shot Private Hershy. They first crossed the river to Charleroi where they were met by the Chief-of-Police of that city. After a thorough search of the vicinity the party boarded a car and rode to Riverview, from where they went to Courtney.

It was in an old tumbled down shack on the hills near Courtney that the four men arrested were found. Several of the troopers at once recognized Lewis and Tucker as having been in Wireton the night of the raid. The men were placed aboard a car and taken to Charleroi where they were locked up.

NEGROES WERE SWEATED

Just before Capt Borland and his men were ready to return to Monessen, the negroes were put through a sweating process and some valuable information obtained, most of it being wrung from Lewis He said that he knew positively that the negro who shot Private Hershy had been badly wounded by one of the latter's bullets, but that he did not know where he was, neither did he know his identity. Nothing of importance was secured from the other three. The work of sweating the negroes occupied some time and it was quite late in the afternoon when the officers returned to Monessen

The street car conductors on the Charleroi line all informed Capt Borland that many negroes have been flocking to Pittsburg ever since Saturday night and that hardly a car leaves but what several are aboard. Capt. Borland stated this morning that no plans for today had been made What the day may bring forth can only be guessed at.

The force here at present numbers thirteen men and a sergeant. Early this morning Capt Borland was visited by a Charleroi negro who asked permission to go to one of the Wireton speakeasies, which had been conducted by a negro named Jersey who escaped, and to pack up the things and lock the house. The negro said he had seen Jersey who gave him the key and asked him to perform the service for him. Constable Watts, in charge of two of the troopers, went with the negro to oversee the work.

BORLAND'S EXPLANATION

Concerning the misunderstanding with the local officers, Capt. Borland said the following "It is always our desire to co-operate with local police or officials of any kind wherever possible, but in this case we considered it not good policy to do so for the reason that in case the fact that the raid was to be made leaked out it could not be successful. It was not our object to take sides in a fight which seemed to exist between the local police and constable

We will be ever and always ready and willing to assist Chief Woodley and his men just as quickly as any other. This trip had been arranged by District Attorney Ralph Horst and had Constable Watts not been in Greensburg where the arrangements were being made he would not have known of the affair himself. In our trips to the different communities we have never made a practice of sending ahead word of our coming as it would surely lessen our chances of success."

WILL FORM POOL LEAGUE

Meeting Will be Held in Charleroi Tuesday When Officers Will be Elected and a Schedule Arranged.

Local lovers of sport will welcome with delight the news that a pool league is to formed in the Monongahela valley. The promoters have at last gotten the different valley towns thoroughly interested and everywhere the enthusiasm is at the highest pitch. Harry Lebowitz, manager of the Capitol Pool Rooms of this city and Dave Lindsay, of Charleroi are the prime movers.

The league will be composed of five teams, Monessen, Charleroi, Donora, Monongahela and Fayette City will be the towns represented. A meeting will be held in Charleroi next Tuesday for the purpose of electing officers and arranging a schedule, as it is intended that the season shall be opened as soon as possible Beside a handsome pennant, a purse of $125 will be awarded to the winning team

Mr. Lebowitz has already organized his team and practice will begin at once

Although but three men will play in each game, five well known local players have been selected to represent Monessen in the race. They are H. Lebowitz, Harry Rinehart, Luther Bolig, Tom Prather and Ed Doney. Each of the above named gentlemen know how to handle a cue and that they will give a good account of themselves is assured.

Not only in Monessen but in the other towns interested, the organization of the league is the all important topic of conversation and the interest increases with the passing of each day. Everywhere the keenest of rivalry is being manifested which is sure to result in some hotly contested matches. Mr. Lebowitz promises that if such a thing is possible, he will land Monessen a winner.

ARRESTED ON A CHARGE OF VIOLATING PURE FOOD LAW

Constable Anderson of Greensburg Served Warrants on Five Monessen Italian Fruit Dealers this Morning.—All Were Released on Bail.

Constable George S. Anderson of Greensburg, came to Monessen this morning and placed under arrest five Italian fruit and confectionery dealers on a charge of violating the pure food laws. Those upon whom warrants were served were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lopresto, charged with selling adulterated olive oil, Nick Stoll, charged with selling adulterated strawberry preserves and Joe Parnella, J. Corcelli and L. Champana charged with selling adulterated candy. All appeared before Squire A. N. Shuster and gave bail in the sum of $300.

They will be given a hearing before Squire Beatty of Greensburg, Friday, Sept. 28 Constable Anderson informed the Independent this morning that in all he had over seventy-five cases on hands at present.

He went from here to Scottdale from where he will visit Latrobe, Irwin, Manor and Jeannette in turn. In the majority of the cases in the above named towns selling adulterated candy is the principal charge. Mr. Anderson stated this morning that more arrests were likely to follow soon here.

EXHIBITING THEIR SAMPLES

In the windows of Light's drug store an exhibit of samples of articles which were raised in the Iowa school garden by the pupils is drawing considerable attention. The exhibit consists of baskets of beans, potatoes, beets, tomatoes and several fine heads of cabbage. The exhibit reflects great credit upon the school children, for a finer lot of vegetables would be hard to find. The articles raised are to be sold and the sum realized will go toward a piano fund and also towards keeping up the garden. A neat sum has already been realized from the earlier products.

WHY PARENTS FEAR.

The approach of the time for reopening the public schools found many parents praying that no radical changes in text books and in systems would for another time upset all precedents and nullify everything the children had thus far learned—in spite of their teaching. They are better prepared to buy the new books required than they are to accept with equanimity any important changes in the methods.

This is especially true in regard to writing. The changes from "slant hand" to the vertical system and, more recently, back again to the 45-degrees-to-the-right style, has no noticeably beneficial effect upon the penmanship of the pupils.

Persons who have given to the subject of penmanship more thought than the public school teacher can find time to devote to it, assert that the only really proper plan of teaching writing is to inculcate the principles and permit the pupils to achieve an individuality. It was the absence of characteristic differences in the writing that prompted the bankers to protest to the board of education against the vertical system of writing, which, as was taught, was merely a slow process of making letters that looked more like print than script and made all checks look alike.

The greatest fault that could be found with the so-called vertical system of writing was that the pupils were permitted to practice it in a cramped position which precluded speed and were required to adhere so closely to "copy" as to eliminate all individuality. As a rule the pupils could write this vertical script-printing better than their teachers.

The addition of a manual training room which has been fitted up and which was opened for the first to-day, constitutes the only change made in the local schools.

HOW MUCH PEOPLE EAT.

In finding a unit for the food consuming power of each family it was assumed as generally true that—

Husbands consume a like amount of food.

The wife consumes 90 per cent as much as the husband.

A child from eleven to fourteen years of age consumes 90 per cent as much food as the husband.

A child from seven to ten years of age consumes 75 per cent as much food as the husband

A child from four to six years of age consumes 40 per cent as much food as the husband.

A child of three years or under consumes 15 per cent as much food as the husband.

Children of fifteen years of age and over are considered as adults so far as the consumption of food is concerned —Boston Transcript.

Monkeys and Colors.

In order to prove its power of discriminating between colors the scientist Dahl made some interesting tests upon a monkey. He colored some sweets with a certain colored dye and some bitter substances with that of another color. After a few attempts the monkey learned to leave without even tasting those articles of food colored with the dye which indicated bitter tasting substances and seized at once upon those which indicated sweets. Varying the experiments sufficiently be found that the monkey distinguished all the different colors readily, save only dark blue. Many savage tribes cannot distinguish dark blue from black and even children distinguish this color later than all others.

Gallen, Mich.

Gentlemen: I bought three bottles of your medicine from my druggist. The medicine rendered me very good service, but I am sorry to say that the druggists here are all sold out of your medicine. I should have bought six bottles instead of three. I will gladly take six bottles of the Nervine and Blood Tonic, and request that you write me, if you are able to read this, for I am rather old to write. I have suffered six years from NERVOUS TROUBLE, caused by a fall, and my whole body remained in a tremble, but no pain. Every doctor I consulted failed to help me, and I was compelled to give up all housework. Then I read your advertisement and bought your medicine, and almost immediately after commencing its use I was a new woman. I hope you will write me at once, and tell me how much money I must send, as I am anxious to get to using your medicine again soon. With most hearty regards, I remain,

On the Battlefield

(Original.)

I was advancing with the line when I was knocked down by a bullet striking my hip. Not knowing that I was badly wounded, I attempted to rise. As I did so I was knocked senseless by more lead striking my skull.

When I regained consciousness I was in the center of a battlefield I have been exposed to shot and shell coming from one direction, but this was the only time in my life I was obliged to endure a hot fire coming from two opposite points of the compass. I could not rise to run away if I would, and had I risen I would not have bettered my condition. In the one case I would have been shot down at once; in the other I must take the risk of some missile either striking the ground where I lay or bursting near me. Round shot coming from one direction passed near above me, shells burst beside me, while the air was alive with the songs of bullets, sweetly terrible Something fell on my chest and rolled off on to the ground. I grasped it. It was a lump of half melted lead. Two bullets had met above me and been fused by the impact. The din of incessant thunder, shrieking iron missles, yells, groans, can only be described by one word—hell.

The fire instead of lessening grew fiercer. I must do something to get out of it or be killed sooner or later, since no one could live long in such a tempest. I raised myself on my elbow to look about me. On my right was a line of bushes. They indicated a water course. If I could drag myself there and find it what I supposed, I might get down into the water, where I would be comparatively safe. The desired line was several hundred yards away Nevertheless I determined to make the effort.

I was obliged to pull with my arms and push with one leg. The wounded hip seemed like a load of stone that I was obliged to drag with me, to say nothing of the excruciating pain coming with the slightest movement. While I was working through dead and wounded—always it seemed in my way—I was stunned by an explosion not ten feet above me, and for a moment half conscious I supposed the end had come. It was a bursting shell. Had it exploded just before it reached me I should have undoubtedly been hit by its fragments. Bursting directly over me, its motion carried them beyond me.

I heard the thunder of horses' hoofs and knew that it denoted a cavalry charge. The sound was far to my right and to my left. I looked and saw them coming. They would pass over me. I would be crushed They were not in column fortunately, but in line. On they came like a troop of fiends, here and there a man falling from the saddle, a horse rearing and plunging forward or dropping dead in his tracks. I saw the Confederate gray, but it made no difference to me whether they were friends or foes. Their mad ride had nothing to do with mercy; it was to destroy. A lieutenant was riding directly for me. With an effort almost superhuman I raised myself. He saw me, but only in time to jump his horse over me. Of the first file behind him two men saw his horse jump and, suspecting some pitfall, passed on either side of me. In the second file, a loose line, one horse jumped me; no other came within a dozen feet of me.

Like a storm rack they had suddenly loomed; like a hurricane they had passed, and as a receding tempest will draw the wind in its trail they drew the fire.

For a time, relieved of the danger of lead and iron, I lay exhausted. Here and there came a groan from those who had fallen while the cavalry was passing; then the fire grew hot again, and I dragged myself on. It was that last hundred feet which came near preventing my reaching the goal. I was half an hour doing it. But at last I got to the bushes and, pulling myself through them, looked over the bank of a stream. The current set against the bank I was on, and I saw that the water was beyond my depth. Seizing a bush, I let myself down and, buoyed by the water, floated immersed to my waist.

Oh, the blessed relief from pain caused by that cool current about my wound!

In an hour the firing suddenly ceased. Then I bethought myself of getting on dry land. I pulled myself part way up by the bush I held when I found it was loosening at the root. If I bore my whole weight on it, it would give way. I was in no condition to swim and I should drown. I was no longer between two fires. I was suspended by a frail support over a watery grave.

I heard a movement above me and looked up. A face—it seemed to belong to a corpse—appeared over the edge of the bank. It was the face of a wounded Confederate who had dragged himself to the bank either for the same purpose I had or to quench his burning thirst, or both. Stretching out his hand, he bent a stronger bush a short distance below me till it was within my grasp. I caught it and after several efforts pulled myself up on to dry land.

How long I lay on my back looking up at the heavens—a few light clouds sailing peacefully as a bird soaring—I don't know. It might have been ten minutes; it might have been an hour. Then, partly recovered from my exertion, I thought of the enemy who had saved me. Turning on my stomach, I crawled to him I found him lying on his side—dead.

His last act was to save the life of an enemy. F. A. MITCHEL.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
To find relief and cure?
No reason why any reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Almira A. Jackson, of East Front St., Traverse City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular, and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

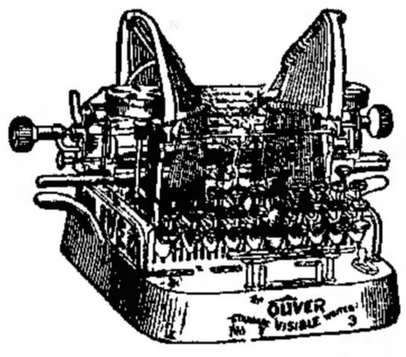
THIS TYPEWRITER DELIVERS THE GOODS

It's the Oliver—the Standard Visible Writer.

The Oliver Typewriter is just like an athlete stripped for a race



It is free from unnecessary multiplicity of wires and springs

No net work of flimsy keys to get tied into hard knots

The nimble fingered stenographer can put talk into type with this machine just as rapidly as she takes your dictation.

For no matter how swiftly she writes, she can see just what she's doing

The keyboard is so wonderfully responsive to the touch of the finger tips that speed comes without effort.

The factors that make for speed are its visible writing, its light, elastic key-touch, and it's all 'round simplicity It has the fewest possible wearing points, and it prints with a downward stroke

The OLIVER Typewriter

THE STANDARD VISIBLE WRITER

is a flawless piece of mechanism, combining the strength of tested steel with the perfect adjustment of the works of a watch You can use an Oliver a life time and the type will not lose alignment

GOSSIP OF THE STAGE.

The Cradoc-Neville Stock Co. again proved its superiority last night, producing "For Her Sisters Sin" in a manner which was not only highly creditable, but which met with the entire approval of the audience. Mr. St. George Langdin through his excellent work is becoming quite a favorite with the local theatre goers, while Miss Marie Gilmore plays her part in a manner which could not be improved upon. In fact the entire company deserve a work of praise as they seem to be especially fitted for their respective parts. In the specialties Warren and Howard keeps the audience in an uproar of laughter and Miss Frankie McCoy in her singing and dancing specialties is making a decided hit.

Last evening Mr. Cradoc was unable to appear in his famous juggling feat as had been announced, but will likely do so later. This evening the attraction will be "The Mysterious Mr. Raffles."

STUART BOOM GROWING

Independents In Pittsburg and Philadelphia Declare For Republican Nominee.

EMERY CANDIDACY REPUDIATED

Citizens Party In Allegheny and Many Members of City Party In Philadelphia For Republican State Ticket.

[Special Correspondence.]
Harrisburg, September 11.

Supporters of Edwin S. Stuart, the Republican nominee for governor, and his colleagues on the state ticket, have had gratifying reports from two ends of the state this week.

First, from Allegheny county came the news that the leaders of the Citizens Party, the local reform organization which succeeded in electing George W. Guthrie mayor of Pittsburg, have decided to support the entire Republican state ticket. They propose to confine their independent political operations to local affairs. In the state campaign they will vote the full Republican ticket from Stuart down, and also for all of the Republican candidates for congress.

While State Chairman Wesley R. Andrews has been getting gratifying reports from all of the Republican county chairmen in the interior counties the state committee leaving the management of the canvass in the counties of Allegheny and Philadelphia to the local organiations, he has not got better news from anywhere than he has received from both these counties.

In Philadelphia, where former Mayor Stuart is best known, a strong movement has been started in his interest among the members of the City Party. Leaders in that party have formed an organization with the view to voting for the Republican state nominees and for Republican nominees for congress.

The chairman of the movement was one of the most active men upon the stump for Berry and the fusion ticket last fall. He was counted upon by the Emery managers to accompany their candidate for governor on his tour of the state. Lincolnite Campaign Chairman Gable was chagrined a few days ago when he learned that this gifted spellbinder is going to speak for Edwin S. Stuart this fall. His name is George W. Sturmer. He is styled "the locomotive engineer orator," and he is very widely known throughout Pennsylvania.

Scheming Leaders Repudiated.

In a public statement, explaining his position to the City Party voters of Philadelphia, Mr. Sturmer, among other things said:

"The City Party voters are going to confine their attention to local affairs this fall, that is, those of them who are Republicans. They believe that the mixing of state and nation politics in this, a semi-national election, is fraught with grave dangers to the cause of civic regeneration, and if carried further means the total annihilation of the reform forces next February.

"The ticket nominated by the Democratic party and endorsed by the Lincoln party, which was led by many men high in the councils of the City Party is not satisfactory to a large proportion of the City Party voters. The election of Mr. Emery, who, while an honest man, would carry into office three Democrats, which, with the present state treasurer, would give the Democrats the preponderance of power in the executive offices at Harrisburg. Suppose Mr. Emery, if elected, should die. The entire state administration of this rock-ribbed Republican state would be in the hands of the Democratic party.

"The present Republican ticket is beyond reproach. Against the character or integrity of any one of them no man can say a word. The head of the ticket is a native and resident of this city, he has been honored by our citizens with the highest office within their gift, and he performed the duties of that high office with all credit to himself and to the full satisfaction of the people. It is not to be supposed that if elected to the office of governor he will fail the people or put a stain on the proud record he now holds."

Perfect Features.

In a perfect face every feature should bear a certain proportion to every other feature. The width of the face should be equal to five eyes. The distance between the eyes should be exactly equal to one eye. Another important relation is that between the eyes and the mouth. The width of the eyes should be equal to two-thirds that of the mouth. The nose should be equal in length to the height of the forehead, of a regular shape and precisely defined outline.

VICTOR MASSY

To Her Who Waits

BY BEATRICE STURGES

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

"Nothing ever happens in this family," grumbled Molly Evans as she sat by the open window and watched an automobile disappear in a cloud of dust. She knew the girls who had just passed in the machine. They had waved their hands gayly at her, but she wished they hadn't. She wished she hadn't seen them. It was no fun to watch other people enjoy themselves.

"You expect too much," replied her sister Kate, who sat near by trying to make a last summer's dress look like new. "There are lots of things that might happen that you wouldn't like at all."

Kate was older than Molly and had managed to evolve for herself a philosophy that made life easier for her than for her restless sister.

"Just give up and stop expecting things, and they will come to you without any trouble," she added, with a serenity which, it must be confessed, scarcely matched her inmost feelings at that moment, for it is not the easiest thing in the world to make a last year's sleeve appear as the latest fashion model.

"Oh, that's all very well to talk, Kate," burst in Molly, "but what good has it ever done? Here we are grubbing along in the same old humdrum way. You've always been an angel and given up to other people, but you're not any nearer your ambition than ever, and just look at me!"

Kate did look at her affectionately. Molly was nineteen and Kate two years older. They had taken care of themselves for four years, Molly by teaching music and a class of little children, as their town had no kindergarten, and Kate by fine sewing and embroidery. The latter's ambition was to be a trained nurse, but that took so much time and she could not afford to give up her present income even for the prospect of a better one in years to come. She was always called upon when there was sickness and responded cheerfully, though usually her compensation consisted solely of thanks verbally expressed.

"Never mind, dear," replied the optimistic Kate. "Something will happen before you think—maybe today. Everything comes to her who waits. Suppose you walk over to Ferncliff and take this waist to Mrs. Dean. I promised it to her today, and it's all done up ready to go."

Molly arose and shook her curly brown head, smoothed out her pink frock and took the package. She kissed Kate before she started out, but there wasn't much animation in her walk.

"Something nice is on the way," said Kate. "I feel it in my bones." Molly laughed and ran down the steps. She broke off a big spray of lilac as she passed the bush by the gate and carried it along with her. The scent of the blossom brought memories that were both sweet and sad. A year ago, leaning over the gate in the moonlight by that same lilac bush, Dick Foster had first said, "Molly, I love you," and a new world of sweetness and life had been opened for her. Two months ago they had quarreled and separated. Why? Why do lovers ever quarrel? Do they know? Does anybody know? The most foolish and futile reasons on earth—jealousy, false pride and sometimes a tentative desire to gain the mastery. With Molly and Dick it was mostly jealousy, with hardly any foundation, and after that a foolish resolve on the part of each not to give in.

"I will come back, when you send for me," announced Dick.

"I will never send for you," declared Molly.

And that was the situation, and that was why Mollie Evans, young and pretty and healthy, with every right to be happy, was taking a lonely walk and feeling herself the most abused girl in the world.

"Maybe Kate is right," she thought to herself. "I'll do things for other people and try to forget myself. I think I'd like to be a nun anyway. I love those white caps."

A tired looking woman passed her just then, and a sudden impulse made Molly hand the lilac spray to her. The woman looked surprised, but Molly hurried on without waiting for thanks. As she approached a little cottage that stood near the road she heard a child's screams, and the same impulse made her rush around the house in the direction of the noise. There in the kitchen stood a terrified little girl trying to put out a fire which had started from some burning oil and which had just leaped to the child's dress as Molly burst in the door. To snatch a rug from the floor and put out the latter was the work of an instant, and in a few moments more the other flames were quenched. After it was all over the neighbors rushed in and explained that the little girl kept house while her mother went out to work. The damage was slight, and neither Molly nor the child was hurt, but when Miss Evans started out again she was a bit pale and shaky.

"Well, something happened, anyway," she told herself as she went along.

She left the package at Ferncliff, which was the finest estate in the neighborhood and stood not far from Dick Foster's home. She decided to walk through the village on the way back and had passed the postoffice, the drug store, of which the town had but one, and had stopped to look in the window of the little bookshop, where some new linen was displayed, when she heard a commotion and turned around to see people hurrying in all directions.

"A runaway," was her first thought, and she started to step into the store for safety when she noticed a big black dog approaching and heard people excitedly exclaim, "He's mad!"

And so he was. Yelping, snapping at everything, foaming at the mouth, down the street he came. Directly across from where Molly stood was an open grass square where a dozen little children, some hardly more than babies, were playing. Toward them he came, and Molly's heart grew cold within her. Not a man moved except to throw a stone at the mad beast, and even the little ones seemed oblivious of the danger that threatened them.

Leaping, the dog gained the square, and the next instant the maddened mouth would have snapped at some helpless child, but Molly was there as soon as he was. Fear had lent wings to her feet, and she stood directly in his path, stooped down, caught his head in her dress skirt and fell upon her knees, holding him down while she screamed for help. Scores of people rushed up then. Some snatched the children, some picked up Molly, others stood and looked, while one man dispatched the dog with a revolver. A chorus of grateful mothers assailed her ears, but she was so faint and weak she felt only a desire to get home and weep on Kate's sympathetic neck. Just then the 5:30 train from New York pulled in and the passengers promptly stepped across the tracks to the square to see the excitement. One young man who shouldered his way through the crowd caught her eye.

"Oh, Dick," she exclaimed, "I'm so glad you've come!" and then fell limply into his outstretched arms before them all.

He drove her home very slowly, for they had a great deal to say, and, of course, Dick had to bring out the ring again from his pocket and put it on Molly's finger, and Molly had to tell him how silly and unhappy she had been and Dick had to tell her something to the same effect about himself, and all that took considerable time.

Kate was waiting by the gate for her, but all clouds of anxiety vanished from her face when she saw Dick and looked in Molly's contented and shining eyes. "Didn't I tell you?" she whispered.

"Yes, you dear old prophet, you did," replied Molly, kissing her, "and it will come to you, too, for when Dick and I are married next month you can go and study and nurse to your heart's content."

Here's Just the Right Bowel Laxative

Gentle, Sure—Pleasant to Take—A Tried and True, Genuine, Nature's Remedy.

If you do not have free, easy and regular movements of the bowels you lack the prime and first essential of good health. There's more harm done than mere uncomfortableness, sluggishness and bilious[illegible]ness—retention of food wastes in the bowels pollutes, irritates and poisons. You make the circulatory system the blood—a scavenger instead of a fountain of purest life and untainted vitality. The ills of constipation are not trifling but nearly always are fraught with vital significance. Seek your relief in Nature! Accept the gentle, natural aid of Lax-ets! Be sure not to force and crowd the delicate organs of the stomach! Avoid all the danger of powerful and unknown medicines! Your safety and your health are always secured—if you take Lax-ets. The formula is on every box—show it to your family physician. Lax-ets are put up in a flat metal case in handy tablet form—one tablet taken before meals or on retiring always brings relief. Pleasing to take—the most potent yet gentle of all remedies—a genuine help of Nature's—a bowel laxative which cures constipation. Recommended and for sale by

Would You Buy Furs Now if the Price be 25 to 40 Per Cent. Under Winter Quotations?

This is a question that has been presented to the Pittsburgh public each Summer for some years past and has always been answered in the affirmative. And thus it is that we are selling furs in the perspiring heat of late Summer.

The furs were bought months ago and made up during the dull season by which move we escaped the advanced price put upon furs. By purchasing now we give you the benefit that accrues to us over the prices that will prevail during the Winter season. We speak advisedly for we have before us the scale of the London market which sets the price of furs the world over.

Following we give some specimens of the underprices:

Squirrel Furs -

Squirrel will again be popular, especially with young people.

Collars in different shapes—natural gray and blended squirrel to choose from $5.00 and $7.50.

Long Throw Ties of dark gray squirrel, $10.00 and $12.00.

Squirrel Muffs, natural gray, $10.00, $12.00 and up to $30.00.

Moire Astrakhan—

This is a rich lustrous black fur that ranks as the most elegant of the inexpensive furs.

Little Collars, fancy shapes $10.00.

Long Throw Ties $18.00 and $20.00

Large Flat Muffs, $7.50 and upwards to $22.50.

Fox Furs -

Our selection of Fox Furs includes—Isabella Sable and Silver Gray.

Long Throw Ties $15.00.

Long Bows $18.00 and upwards to $30.00.

Large Muffs, four and five strips, $15.00 to $20.00.

Mink Furs—

of this fine fur we offer one very special number as follows—sets of fine Southern Mink—large shaped muff and throw-over tie at $25.00.

Brook Mink—

Large well shaped muffs of natural brook mink at $5.00.

Persian Lamb—

Persian Lamb Scarfs, $12.50 to $30.00.

Persian Lamb Muffs, $12.00, $15.00 to $75.00.

On the [illegible] Russian Sable, Blum Marten and Chinchilla the saving is just [illegible] cent.

If desired [illegible] will be stored until sent for.

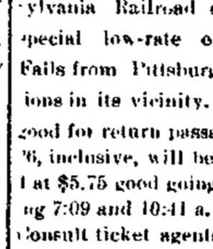
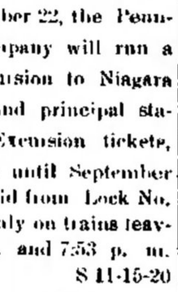
Note the Difference

This kind shines itself and is the only preparation suitable for Gas Ranges. It Kills Rust on Stove Pipe, Wire Screens, Stoves or any iron work. It will not wash off, and wears months. Price, 25c.



This is a liquid stove polish that shines easier, wears longer and costs less than any other. Keeps forever always ready for use Big can, 9c.



Ask your dealer for either kind.

If your dealer hasn't it Monessen HardwareCo. has.
